

Some of the students and staff at Kindoya Hospital. The nurses wearing blue are in training.

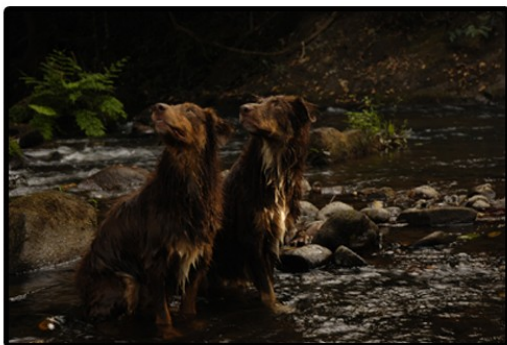

Dear friend and eager Bible student, Joseph Kaitar.

A small portion of the beautiful view from the top of our hill. The white buildings across the valley are part of the mining company. The building second from the right is the company guest house where we stay when visiting Baomahun. They graciously house and feed us at no charge. The mountains rising behind these buildings are where mining will soon begin.

The cut brush being burned in preparation for building to begin. Prior to being cut, the brush was too thick and tall to walk through. Sorry Reverend Al Gore, slash and burn still happens.

Goodness (R) and Mercy wait for a stick to be thrown in the water so they can fight over who gets to bring it back. Though shallow, the water does get deep enough to provide good swimming exercise for them.

Koyeima boys' school where we will be holding church services.